SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE CHANCELLOR AND ASSOCIATE UNIVERSITY PROVOST;
EXECUTIVE VICE CHANCELLOR AND UNIVERSITY PROVOST:
CUNY CENTRAL OFFICE PROJECTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

From 2006 to 2014 I served the City University of New York's central office in several different capacities. First, as Special Advisor to the Chancellor and Associate University Provost, I was responsible for system-wide academic affairs projects as well as CUNY's Performance Management Process (the PMP—the annual evaluation system for all 24 campuses and presidents). Subsequently, beginning June of 2008, as Executive Vice Chancellor and University Provost (Interim until 4/09), I was responsible for leading all central office functions related to academic affairs, including enrollment management, faculty and student research, institutes, institutional research, libraries, partnerships with New York City's Department of Education, and student affairs, while continuing to supervise the PMP. The total central office academic affairs budget is approximately $100 million. Some particular initiatives in which I played a significant or leading role include the following:

- Assigned peer mentors to each new campus chief academic officer beginning fall 08
- Conducted a randomized controlled trial demonstrating that mainstreaming remedial mathematics students in college-level statistics with extra support results in a higher pass rate than placing those students in remedial mathematics
- Established all-funds budget for the central Office of Academic Affairs
- Established new policy permitting campuses other than the Graduate Center to offer and administer professional doctorates
- Established new phased retirement policy for faculty
- Established new policy prohibiting all tobacco use on CUNY property
- Facilitated approval of the Macaulay Honors College to give joint degrees
- Facilitated approval of over 25 new CUNY Distinguished Professors and identification of the first winners of the Chancellor's Award for Math Instruction
- Facilitated instructional technology through funding hybrid courses and the Academic Commons (a networking site for faculty), approving CUNY's first online graduate degree, serving on the Ithaka online learning committee, and sponsoring CUNY's first conference on the use of technology in teaching math
- Facilitated the founding of Guttman Community College and of the CUNY School of Public Health (including establishment of new MPH tracks, the DPH degree, and CEPH accreditation)
- Facilitated the raising of approximately $5 million from the Helmsley and Robin Hood Foundations for a randomized controlled trial concerning CUNY's Accelerated Study of Associate Degrees program
- For the Teacher Academy, identified unsustainable costs, paused admissions, appointed a University Working Group to develop a new model, and negotiated continued funding from the Petrie Foundation

- Increased the emphasis of the Office of Academic Affairs on evidence and research, including by instituting occasional small-group discussions of important research articles, by identifying evidence-based practices, by initiating many specific qualitative and quantitative research projects, and by helping faculty in multiple disciplines learn how to conduct rigorous research on interventions for increasing student success
- Implemented new CUNY writing assessment test and raised standards for undergraduate math skills
- Increased communications and collaborations via: creation of a website and Listserv for CUNY chief academic officers, establishment of an Office of Academic Affairs newsletter and suggestion box, and wide distribution of minutes of Academic Affairs meetings
- Instituted enrollment management policy changes including, for the first time: establishing enrollment targets for each campus, establishing a waiting list, and giving priority to within-CUNY transfers
- Led CUNY team that obtained approval of the CUNY 2008-2012 Master Plan by the New York State Regents and led CUNY team that wrote the CUNY 2012-2016 Master Plan
- Led CUNY initiative (Pathways) to improve student transfer through establishing a university-wide general education framework, university-wide courses for entry into the largest transfer majors, and transfer credit for all electives
- Member of the bargaining team for the 2007-2010 PSC-CUNY Collective Bargaining Agreement.
- Participated in numerous search committees, including chairing: the search for the Dean of the new School of Public Health, four searches for the Office of Institutional Research and Assessment, the search for the University Dean for Education, and cochairing the search for the Founding President of Guttman Community College
- Performance Management Process (PMP; annual evaluation process for all CUNY campuses): significantly revised measures; made all data public; distributed results more widely; instituted clear consequences for results, including additional monetary consequences; increased participation of all relevant constituencies; developed and implemented an associated campus-wide electronic president evaluation process
- Streamlined a large number of faculty human resources processes
- Supervised the initiation and/or expansion of several university-wide programs that dramatically increase student success and support including ASAP, CUNYStart, and Single Stop.
- Terminated CUNY's own rising junior examination, and instituted administration of the CLA to help assess general education

PROVOST AND VICE PRESIDENT FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS PROJECTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

From 2001 to 2006 I served as Vice President for Academic Affairs at the New York Institute of Technology (the title of Provost was added in 2004). As Provost and VPAA I was responsible for NYIT's schools, academic computing, Center for Teaching and Learning with Technology, academic enrichment programs, international and offsite programs, Ellis (online) College, the libraries, the registrar, sponsored programs and research, and the Vocational Independence Program. I was also NYIT's liaison with the faculty collective bargaining unit (AAUP) representing NYIT in grievances and arbitrations. There are approximately 300 full-time and 500 part-time faculty at NYIT. Several thousand bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees are awarded annually with a total student population of over 14,000 on campuses in New York, online, and around the world. The total Academic Affairs budget was over $55 million. Following are some of the initiatives that I was responsible for at NYIT.

Instruction and Student Services

- Creation of the MyMentor program (a mentoring program for new first-year students)
- Complete renovation of system for student evaluation of teaching
- Development of campus-wide outcomes assessment plans
- Establishment of a central advising office, including videoconferencing
- Establishment of many new programs including DPT and MFA; chaired university curriculum committee
- Establishment of academic advising, externship/internship, and online teaching standards
- First-year experience coordination and upgrading of student services
- Induction of first members into several national honor societies including Phi Eta Sigma and Golden Key
- Multiple successful accreditations including Middle States, ABET, NAAB, NCATE, etc.

Faculty

- Complete revision of internal grant system to rely more heavily on peer review
- Creation of a Faculty Handbook and Faculty Orientation
- Decrease in teaching load for all faculty
- Establishment of an annual reception to honor faculty achievements
- Establishment of a sabbatical application procedure
- Institution of workshops for faculty personnel committees and tenure-track faculty
- Lead negotiator for NYIT in a five-year collective bargaining agreement (2002-2007) with the AAUP

Facilities and Technology

- Establishment of online services for students, an Academic Affairs web site, and the SIRSI system
- Establishment of Ellis College, an online college for working adults, partnering with a for-profit company
- Institution of a new faculty workload monitoring system
- Renovation of many laboratory, office, and classroom spaces
- Renovation of the Manhattan campus library in support of a new library service model

Administrative, Community, and Financial

- CoChair Activity-Based Planning/Budgeting Committee that revised NYIT's budgeting system
- CoChair Three-Campus Planning Committee that refocused a campus to save several million $ annually
- Creation of an Office of International and Offsite Programs, and significant expansion of those programs
- Decentralization of financial control, providing more control to the academic deans
- Establishment of Advisory Boards for NYIT's schools
- Establishment of an Office of Sponsored Programs and Research including policies
- Founded and chair the Columbus Circle Consortium (institutions and corporations around Columbus Circle)
- Institution of many new databases to assist administrative decision making
- NYSED Approval as a Provider of Distance Education
- Termination of several outsourcing contracts improving service and saving close to $1 million annually

DEAN OF ARTS AND SCIENCES PROJECTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

From 1995 to 2001 I served as Dean of the Weissman School of Arts and Sciences at Baruch College of the City University of New York. WSAS comprises 12 departments, employs over 200 full-time faculty and 30 staff, has an adjunct budget of over $2 million per year, and awards close to 300 Bachelor's degrees annually. In addition, each Baruch undergraduate takes half of his or her credits in WSAS. WSAS houses several Master's programs and the CUNY Ph.D. program in Industrial/Organizational Psychology. Many of the WSAS's full-time faculty also teach at CUNY's graduate center. The total budget is approximately $25 million. Below are some of the new projects that I was responsible for as Dean.

Administrative and Fiscal Reorganization and Enhancement

- Greater decentralization of Dean's office funds (funds shifted to department budgets)
- Maintenance of critical department services despite severe budgetary cutbacks
- Negotiation of significant additional funds for department special projects and needs
- Establishment of WSAS Graduate Studies Office
- Restructuring of school budgetary monitoring
- Receipt of significant endowed funds supporting, for example, several endowed professorships
- Support directed to high-quality programs and programs central to WSAS's mission

Faculty

- Institution of yearly reception honoring faculty authors and editors
- Establishment of mentor program for nontenured, tenure-track faculty
- Awarding of Distinguished Professor rank to five faculty
- Awarding of the CUNY new faculty research award to three faculty

Instructional Program Changes

- Establishment of new interdisciplinary area studies minors
- Establishment of undergraduate honors and communications intensive course sections
- Extensive revision of ESL and remedial programs
- Institution of school-wide pedagogical seminars and support services
- Establishment of new interdisciplinary Master's programs involving WSAS, business, and public affairs
- Creation of Dean's Student Advisory Board consisting of Baruch student leaders

Long-Term Planning

- Establishment of a departmental review process
- Faculty approval of first WSAS mission statement
- Submission of a five-year academic plan

Research Program Development

- Creation of a school-wide support structure for obtaining external funds for research
- Increase in reassigned time for faculty research despite severe budgetary cutbacks

Space

- Participation in development of plans for new academic complex
- Rehabilitation of many critical areas in the school, including offices, laboratories, and meeting areas

Technology

- Networking of all WSAS faculty and staff
- Establishment of a school-wide technology support structure and laptop loan program
- Creation of WSAS web site, web-based applications, and electronic newsletter
- Institution of annual CUNY-wide conference on technology and teaching

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CHAIR PROJECTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

From 1992 until 1995 I was Chair of the Department of Psychology at Stony Brook. This department included approximately 40 full-time faculty, over 150 graduate students (the second largest graduate program on campus), approximately 1,000 majors (the largest major on campus), and 10 secretarial and technical staff. The department was divided into five graduate training programs: biopsychology, clinical psychology, cognitive psychology, general experimental psychology, and social/health psychology. Also under the wing of the Psychology Department were the Marital Therapy clinic, the Psychological Center, and the University Preschool (each with its own staff). The total department budget was approximately five million dollars per year, plus external funding of approximately 3 million dollars per year. As Chair, I engaged in a wide variety of projects, and made a number of changes in department policy, some of which are listed below.

Instructional Program Development

- Reaccreditation of Psychology graduate programs
- Revision of Psychology honors program
- Specification and negotiation of Psychology's role in campus-wide new Behavioral Neuroscience initiative
- Implementation of grant for graduate training of minority students
- Facilitation of undergraduate summer science internships, including for minority students
- Institution of a Psychology terminal Masters program
- Educational programs for faculty and graduate students concerning sexual harassment
- Establishment of a task force to improve Psychology teaching

Research Program Development

- Allocation of funds to faculty and graduate students with currently unsponsored research
- Allocation of funds for research-related faculty and graduate student travel
- Return of department indirect cost funds to generating PIs
- Completion of department computer network

Faculty Development

- Institution of Psychology faculty merit awards
- Establishment of a committee to recommend merit-based salary raises
- Implementation of a faculty-developed workload policy
- Faculty recruitment, promotion, and retirement
- Reallocation of department resources according to faculty productivity
- Formulation of a specific short- and long-term department hiring plan

Administrative and Fiscal Reorganization and Enhancement

- Establishment of a long-range planning committee
- Formal evaluation of department administrators
- Solicitation of very first charitable donations to department
- Restructuring of department budgetary monitoring
- Negotiation of additional campus funds for department special projects and needs

Space

- Reallocation of research space according to faculty productivity
- Rehabilitation of Psychology buildings
- Relandscaping of grounds around Psychology buildings

ASSOC. DEAN OF SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES PROJECTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

From 1989 until 1991, I served as the Associate Dean of Stony Brook's Division of Social and Behavioral Sciences, reporting to the Dean of Social and Behavioral Sciences. This division comprises seven departments plus several programs and institutes. During the period that I was Associate Dean, the Division of Social and Behavioral Sciences employed 160 full-time faculty, enrolled 350 graduate students, and awarded close to 1,000 baccalaureate degrees per year. The annual budget was in excess of 12 million dollars, and total external funding for the division approximated three million dollars per year. During my tenure as Associate Dean I was involved in a large variety of projects and had many different responsibilities. My major projects and responsibilities are outlined below. Some of these projects and responsibilities involved working with the Dean of Social and Behavioral Sciences. However, in most cases I worked independently.

Budget and Fund Raising

- Allocation to departments of teaching assistant lines, tuition waiver, and other funds
- Was awarded SUNY Faculty Visitation Grant to study programs at SUNY Binghamton
- Notification of faculty concerning appropriate funding opportunities
- Review of grant application budget requests

Faculty and Staff

- Chair of renewal committee for Institute Director
- Analysis of faculty teaching loads and department secretarial usage

Graduate Education

- Chair of the division's Graduate Committee consisting of all division graduate directors
- Analysis of departments' utilization of teaching assistants
- Development and certification of programs

Undergraduate Education

- Chair of the division's Undergraduate Committee consisting of all division undergraduate directors
- Assistance with programs bringing minority, small-college, and high school students to Stony Brook as summer social science research interns
- Collection, analysis, and dissemination of information concerning a model undergraduate program: SUNY Binghamton
- Coordination of division offerings for the new core curriculum
- Participation in development of faculty advising system

Publicity and Admissions

- Preparation and presentation of verbal and written statements concerning division majors and activities, for use both on campus and externally
- Coordination of programs involving high school students and division researchers

- Analysis, reallocation, and rehabilitation of division space

Data Base

- Constructed and maintained a data base concerning all aspects of the division including faculty, external funding, graduate students, undergraduate students, and space.
